Abstract

The managerial theory and practice, numerous pieces of research and the managerial experience underline the fact that in this period of transition to market economy, the public administration needs to be changed within most of its activity fields and at the level of every providing factor, either material or non-material. Nowadays, the policy of change shapes itself more and more as a constitutive part essential for the job of public servant.

Keywords: management of public administration, methods of management, reform of public administrator, managerial process.
